LOCAL FLAVORS

The craft beer market is foaming over in the Chicago area. Here's a look at six breweries making a name for themselves. TRIBUNE

Half Acre Beer Co.

4257 N. Lincoln Ave.

Offers brews that are all over the map, and with pride. Packaged beers are relatively conventional, but the continually rotating tap handles can vary from a hopped red ale to a barleywine. Best known for: Daisy Cutter, a heavily hopped pale ale

Two Brothers Brewing Co.

Warrenville, Ill.

Focuses on beers that are long on flavor, without falling out of balance. Rarely veers into high-octane brews. Best known for: Domaine DuPage, an amber, French-style country ale

Flossmoor Station

Flossmoor, Ill.

Offers a broad portfolio that tends to stick to conventional styles that are executed cleanly and consistently, including wheat beer, brown ale and India pale ale. Best known for: Pullman Brown, a brown porter

Metropolitan Brewing

5121 North Ravenswood Ave.

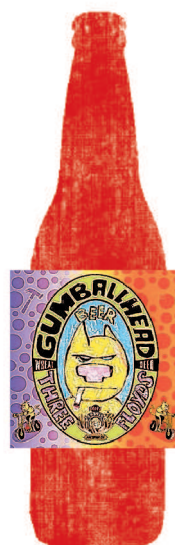

Focuses on German-style lagers that are very clean and easy to drink. Best known for: Krankshaft, a crisp, Kolsch-style beer.

Revolution Brewing

2323 N Milwaukee Ave.

Emphasizes balanced and drinkable beers, not extreme brews with high alcohol content or bold taste profiles. Best known for: Bottom Up, a Belgian-style wheat beer

Three Floyds Brewing Co.

Munster, Ind.

Known for being daring in aim and well-executed; has a large, dedicated following, many of whom attend annual Dark Lord Day, when the brewery releases (and quickly sells out of) its Russian imperial stout. Best known for: Gumballhead, a heavily hopped wheat beer

Specialty brews making a mark in Chicago and beyond

Chicago Tribune

When it was announced last week that Goose Island is being sold to Anheuser-Busch for $38.8 million, it set the blogosphere atwitter with concerns that a local beer apocalypse was brewing.

For the burgeoning ranks of breweries and aficionados, the Chicago craft beer scene is a lot closer to the beginning than the end.

With double-digit growth across the craft beer industry, several new entrants are opening for business, while established local favorites such as Half Acre, Three Floyds and Two Brothers are all furiously ramping up production in a seemingly futile effort to meet increasing demand.

"We just can't make enough beer," said Gabriel Magliaro, 32, a former magazine advertising director who opened Half Acre Beer Co. in a converted North Lincoln Avenue warehouse in Chicago in 2008. "Our goal every week is just to try not to run out of beer."

A homegrown revolution that took root in the 1980s, the craft beer industry grew from a handful of pioneers to more than 1,750 breweries in 2010. Early leaders included Sierra Nevada, Samuel Adams and Anchor Brewing, which was sold last year to the Griffin Group, a private-equity firm.

Leveraging local roots, flavorful, sometimes fanciful, products and quirky marketing, craft beer accounted for 5 percent of beer sales nationally in 2010. With mainstream sales flat, some analysts think that share could reach 20 percent within the decade.

"Craft beer is kind of a rising tide right now," said Benj Steinman, president of Beer Marketer's Insights. "It's really in the sweet spot of where more consumers are going, and that seems to be toward the sort of innovation, flavor and variety that the craft brewers are epitomizing."

Craft beer sales came in at just under 10 million barrels in 2010, an 11 percent annual increase, while total U.S. beer sales were down 1 percent, to 203.5 million barrels, according to the Brewers Association. Some 30 percent of craft beer is sold on tap, three times the industry average.

With a higher price point—most sell for about $9 per six-pack—craft beer revenue is relatively stronger, accounting for $7.6 billion out of $101 billion in total beer sales last year.

Revenue is growing faster in Chicago, the nation's seventh-largest craft beer market, with store sales up 22 percent last year, to about $22.5 million, according to the SymphonyIRI Group. The top two markets are in the Pacific Northwest—Portland, Ore., and Seattle—which account for 12 percent of craft beer sales nationally.

TWEET OF THE WEEK

@GiggleFlower:
The ozone layer or cheese in a spray can... Don't make me choose.

Your girlfriend is totally fake

This is a new low. Virtually.

A startup called Cloud Girlfriend wants to bring some excitement to your Facebook page, giving men—and, presumably, women—who don't have a real girlfriend a fake one to boost their social media presences.

Really. So instead of sitting home alone with your relationship status reading "single," you can sit home alone and change your relationship status to something more, uh, meaningful.

Is this any different than calling a chat line or finding an escort to keep you company? Maybe, maybe not.

Cloud Girlfriend works like this, according to cloudgirlfriend.com:

Step 1: Define your perfect girlfriend. Step 2: We bring her into existence. Step 3: Connect and interact with her publicly on your favorite social network. Step 4: Enjoy a public long-distance relationship with your perfect girl.

Other than that, the website is mysteriously devoid of information. But someone is tweeting and posting details and information on question-and-answer site quora.com.

I tweeted @cloudgirlfriend to ask how this concept avoids violating Facebook's strict terms of service, which doesn't allow computer-controlled accounts. I received a simple response: "not bots."

Ahhhh, so that means it's not a fake woman. It's a real woman playing the part of the virtual girlfriend.

I investigated further at Quora and found several questions related to the service, including the one I asked about Facebook's terms of service. A poster identifying himself as Cloud Girlfriend co-founder David Fuhrman confirmed it: "The girlfriend is operated by a real girl. It is not a sex chat or pornography service."

As the Old Spice Guy would say, now back to me. The thought of a staff of women working around the clock posting to people's Facebook profiles is even creepier than the concept. And while we're talking about creepy, someone inquired on Quora about modeling for the site and Fuhrman said she should email him.

Ewwwww.

I could offer you alternatives, but I just don't have it in me. I'm always online, and granted I'm married, but even I realize the irony here. If you are seriously considering signing up, then you've got to log out, unplug and hit the dating scene. Work out a fake relationship with the bartender if you have to. Cloud Girlfriend is funny, creative and different, but blurring the lines of fantasy and reality like this can't be healthy.

Obviously, everyone wants to have someone to call their own, but is a fake social media girlfriend the way to go just to keep up appearances? Tweet me, poke me—just tell me. All I ask is that you be real.

TAKE TWO

AFTER DETROIT DEBACLE, SHEEN BRINGS REVAMPED LIVE SHOW TO CHICAGO

Chicago Tribune

Call it Charlie Sheen's celebrity makeover.

His live show Sunday in Chicago—one day after he was booed out of Detroit for a disjointed first performance there—was an overhaul, if nothing else. Instead of the exercise in hero worship from the night before, Sheen mostly sat and fielded an interviewer's questions, bantering with the crowd, dropping the F-bomb and actually seeming to satisfy customers.

This was “My Violent Torpedo of Truth/Defeat is Not an Option” Part 2.

Before the show, as TV cameras and reporters swarmed the entrance, the mood was one of cautious optimism. Few who were interviewed held expectations any higher than being able to say they had been there for a potential public implosion.

“I wanted to not go at all, then I read the review [of the Detroit show] this morning and it changed my mind,” said Bill Termunde, 26, of Wicker Park. “I wanted to see this disaster.”

Termunde and a friend paid $15 for $35 tickets outside the Chicago Theatre from someone who, they said, had made the opposite decision.

Sheen was, in a sense, bulletproof. “I’m not expecting him to do that well, or he wouldn’t be Charlie Sheen,” said Jenna Schaefer, a student at Eastern Illinois University from Gurnee.

Said her date, consultant Michael Mock: “I just want to pretty much see all the interviews I’ve seen on TV in real life. Tell us what he’s done. Tell us about some 7-gram rocks [of cocaine]. It’s either gonna make history or it’s gonna be a great show.”

The show was different from Sheen’s debut in the Motor City. Gone was the manifesto-type ranting. Gone was the raucous banging bass and the videos cobbled together from old movies and YouTube clips about Sheen.

And gone, almost entirely, were the boos for the embattled former “Two and a Half Men” star.

People outside before the show said they didn’t expect magnificence. They just wanted to see and hear Sheen being more or less himself, like in all those TV interviews he’s done since his life blew up this spring.

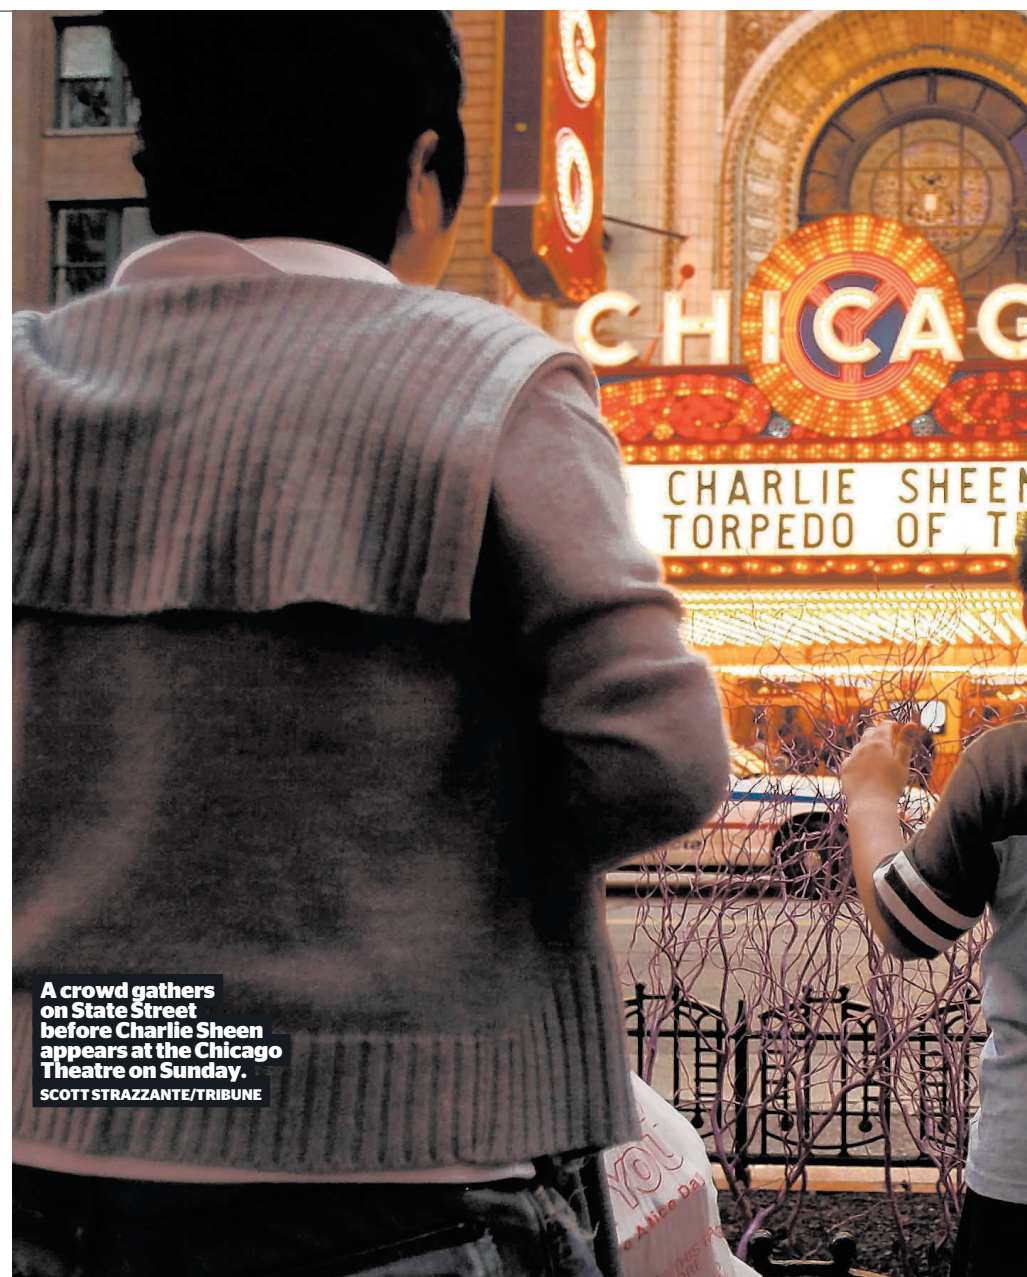

That’s what they got—along with some news. Sheen said he would return to “Two and a Half Men,” which fired him after he viciously criticized creator Chuck Lorre. “If they say ‘Here’s your job back,’ I’ll go back to work,” he said.

“I think it’s a great [bleeping] show,” he said, but his bosses weren’t so great: “They didn’t give a [bleep] that I was hammered for eight years ... money, ratings, money, ratings.”

He apologized to co-star Jon Cryer for having called him a troll: “I was wrong. Jon’s not a troll. Jon’s a [bleeping] rock star.”

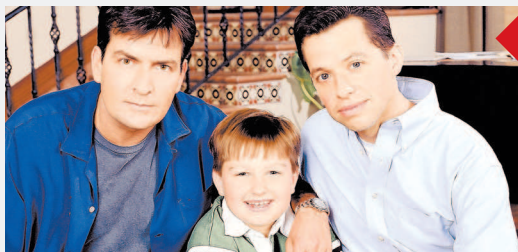

He also acknowledged being jealous of George Clooney and how his movies always seem to work, told at least a little bit of what

BAD BOY REPUTATION

Charlie Sheen has seen and done a lot since his first major movie appearance in 1984. Here’s a recap of what he’s been up to since the premiere of “Two and a Half Men,” his most recent professional endeavor. REDEYE

2003

Sheen joins Jon Cryer and child actor Angus T. Jones on the set of the hugely successful “Two and a Half Men.” By the end of his run, he’s making a reported $2 million per episode.

2004

Sheen and wife Denise Richards have a baby girl.

2005

Richards and Sheen have another baby girl. Later that year, they get divorced.

ACTION ... AND REACTION

Charlie Sheen bombed with his debut "Violent Torpedo of Truth Tour" show in Detroit on Saturday. How bad was it? WALL STREET JOURNAL

"When Sheen finally took the stage after several tepid attempts to warm up the crowd with clips of his father's films, he seemed to be referring to a script. At times, he seemed perplexed by what he was doing, saying, 'Is anybody else as confused by this [bleep] as I am?' " —THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER

"The show is now an unmitigated disaster. People are leaving early. Attendee Chris Accchione, a self-described Sheen fan who traveled all the way from Toronto for the show, says his entire row walked out early. 'He's making a fool of himself,' he says. 'Is there a bigger loser in the world? He'll be begging ['Two and a Half Men' boss] Chuck Lorre for his job back by the end of the week.' "

—ENTERTAINMENT WEEKLY

"Before a crowd that turned from initial worship to near open revolt, with chants of 'refund' echoing through the stately Fox Theatre just 30 minutes after a standing ovation, the embattled tabloid personality added more troubles to his pile."

— TRIBUNE

it was like to live with two women, his "goddesses," and saved some special venom for Brooke Mueller, who has been listed as his ex-wife, but whom Sheen said he is still technically married to.

Lastly, he took on the Detroit debacle early and often. "I had the best [bleeping] time of my life," he said at the end of the show, "unlike that death sentence that was Detroit."

HOW HE GOT HERE

Sheen's tour comes on the heels of a tabloid maelstrom during which he was hospitalized after trashing a New York hotel room and again after hosting what sounded like a marathon bender at his home. But through most of that, he continued to hold down his job as star of CBS' "Two and a Half Men" just fine. It wasn't until Sheen began insulting his employers, especially the show's creator, Chuck Lorre, that production was halted (in late February) and Sheen was fired (in early March).

2008

Sheen marries real estate professional Brooke Mueller.

2009

Sheen and Mueller have twin boys. In December, Mueller calls 911 and says Sheen threatened her.

2010

Sheen is hospitalized after he's found naked in a trashed hotel room in New York. Sheen and Mueller file divorce papers and Mueller checks into rehab.

2011

Sheen is hospitalized for abdominal pains. He checks into rehab and "Two and a Half Men" is put on hiatus. In March, CBS cites Sheen's erratic public behavior in its decision to fire him. The actor sues for breach of contract.

CTA's in a selling mood

Chicago Tribune

Commuters soon may be able to drop off their dry-cleaning, conduct other business or just buy a cup of coffee right inside or next door to their "L" stop.

Sixty-six of the 137 concession spaces at CTA rail stations are vacant, according to the transit agency. But a campaign is beginning to upgrade the selection of offerings to commuters and boost CTA rental income by attracting new retail tenants, including national chains that would operate rail station stores in multiple stations, officials said.

"For lease" signs are posted at 19 CTA stations on the Red, Purple, Pink, Brown, Blue and Green lines. Up to 40 locations are expected to be available within a month, with more following later, according to officials at Jones Lang LaSalle, a Chicago-based commercial real estate services provider that is marketing the retail spaces for the CTA.

Almost half of the concession spaces at CTA rail stations are vacant, according to the transit agency. PHIL VELASQUEZ/TRIBUNE

Sex complaint surfaces during CPD investigation

Chicago Tribune

A third Chicago police officer has been stripped of his police powers in connection with the investigation of an alleged sexual assault by two other officers.

The third Town Hall District officer, who wasn't on duty Wednesday morning when the allegation was made, works in the same unit on the overnight "first watch" with the two others under criminal investigation for the incident, police sources said.

A police source said the third officer had a previous complaint lodged against him in connection with an incident involving another woman one night when he was partnering with one of the other two accused officers. Details of that complaint weren't available.

"While these allegations are not criminal at this time or directly associated with [the Wednesday incident], the [third] officer has been relieved of his police powers and placed in an administrative assignment pending resolution of the allegation," Chicago police said in an emailed statement Saturday.

A police source said at least one of the officers being investigated in the Wednesday incident has had at least one other complaint lodged against him alleging sexual misconduct.

No criminal charges have been filed against any of the officers.

A 22-year-old woman told investigators she was near Addison Street and Sheffield Avenue early Wednesday when the two officers offered her a ride home.

She told police she had sex with one officer in the car and, after playing strip poker in her Rogers Park apartment, had sex with an officer there.

The woman later told investigators she was afraid to refuse.

After she ran screaming out of the apartment, a neighbor called police.

It's a bird! It's a plane! It's ... under arrest

Chicago Tribune

A Chicago police officer must have thought he was seeing things when he spotted a parachute-wearing man early Sunday drifting down to a Loop street from a skyscraper construction site.

The officer heard a popping noise in the air in the 100 block of West Wacker Drive about 2:40 a.m. Seconds later, he spotted a man slowly falling to the ground wearing a parachute, police spokesman Officer John Mirabelli said.

Police said the downtown daredevil appeared to have leapt from the unfinished shell of the Waterview Tower and Shangri-La Hotel. Only about 26 floors of the 90-floor project are completed.

The parachutist, Shaun Walters, 44, of Ottawa, was not hurt. He was arrested and charged with misdemeanor reckless conduct.

Boy, 3, dies in fall from roller coaster

Police: Child appears to have slipped under safety bar

Chicago Tribune

Authorities are investigating the death of a 3-year-old boy who fell from a children's roller coaster at an indoor amusement park in Norridge on Saturday night.

About 7 p.m., the boy was riding a roller coaster at Go Bananas at 4516 N. Harlem Ave., Norridge Police Chief James Jobe said.

He was seated near the front of a roller coaster called the Python Pit with his twin brother when he managed to get underneath the safety bar, the chief said. The boy slipped out of the ride while it was in motion, fell between two cars and suffered head injuries, then fell a few feet to the floor.

The boy was identified by authorities as Jayson Dansby, of the 15300 block of Evers Street in Dolton. He was dead on the scene, according to the Cook County medical examiner's office.

"He was a fun child. ... That child had more spirit and joy than anything in the world," Jay-son's great-uncle the Rev. Carl Jones told reporters. "I want to remember the joyous times, the love times, not the incident that took place. I need to remember what time I spent with this child."

There were no height requirements posted near the ride, but it is believed the boy met all the requirements for the ride, Jobe said. The ride is in an area separate from the other attractions and its tracks pass through a darkened, enclosed section. The boy fell as the cars passed through that part of the ride, the chief said.

A state inspector was at the amusement park Saturday night, but the incident appears to be "just a tragic accident," Jobe said.

Reached Sunday, the owner of the park said he opened Go Bananas about six years ago.

"I just want to say how tragic this is and how bad I feel for the family," Jerrold Marks said. "We're going to 100 percent cooperate with all the various authorities in the investigation."

Southwest grounds planes after emergency

Investigators found "widespread cracking" on the skin of a Southwest Airlines Boeing 737 that made an emergency landing in Arizona after a hole opened on top of the aircraft during flight Friday, a National Transportation Safety Board member said Sunday.

A flight attendant sustained minor injuries when the hole opened and the cabin depressurized 18 minutes after the plane took off from Phoenix bound for Sacramento, Calif., NTSB member Robert Sumwalt said.

The flight data recorder indicated the plane was cruising at 36,000 feet when it depressurized, but it dropped to 11,000 within four and a half minutes, Sumwalt said.

The pilot initially planned to return to Phoenix to land, but after the flight attendants reported seeing blue sky through the jet's roof he made an emergency landing at a military base in Yuma, Ariz., Sumwalt said.

The initial inspection found "clear evidence that the skin separated at the lower rivet line" where "the skin comes together on the aircraft," Sumwalt said.

The cracking likely would not be visible during routine inspections, but could have been seen when the plane underwent major maintenance and was disassembled in March 2010, Sumwalt said.

The hole that opened was 5 feet long and 1 foot wide, he said.

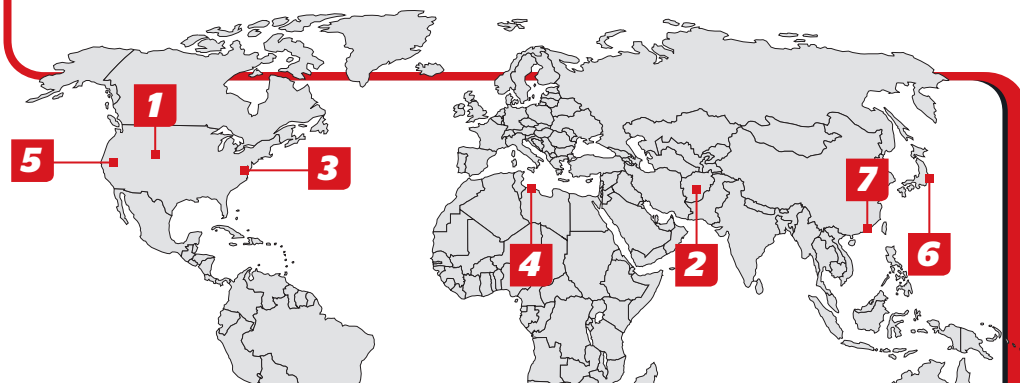

Southwest mechanics planned to cut a 9-foot section from the plane Sunday so it could be shipped to the NTSB lab in Washington for study, Sumwalt said.

Southwest grounded 79 of its planes for inspection for "aircraft skin fatigue" Saturday, but none of the findings were available Sunday, Sumwalt said.

Hazy forecast

7 A blanket of haze hangs over the Hong Kong skyline early Sunday. A survey released at the end of 2010 by public policy think tank Civic Exchange found one-quarter of residents would like to leave Hong Kong to escape its pollution after levels reached a record high, prompting government warnings to people to avoid going out. Butler has its eyes on a different outcome

Chicago Tribune

HOUSTON Shelvin Mack has tried, but every time he sits down to watch the movie "Hoosiers" he falls asleep.

"A lot of people in Indiana don't like me for that," Butler's point guard said.

It won't matter if Mack and his teammates write their own memorable ending, even if that means more comparisons to the endearing 1986 movie set in Butler's famous Hinkle Fieldhouse about a small-town Indiana high school team that stages an unlikely championship upset.

A victory in Monday night's NCAA Tournament championship in Reliant Stadium against Connecticut would make Butler only the second team to win as a No. 8 seed, tying Villanova's 1985 upset against Georgetown.

While the game is cast as a David vs. Goliath showdown, Butler's presence in the title game last season in some ways makes the Bulldogs the giant.

"Definitely not a Cinderella," Connecticut point guard Kemba Walker said of his opponent.

"They've been here and they have experience, especially in this particular game. They've definitely proven they can play with the big dogs."

Butler must find a leash for Walker, the Doberman of college basketball averaging 25.5 points per game in postseason play, if it wants an alternate ending.

The Huskies are vying for their third NCAA championship, while Butler is going for its first.

The Bulldogs aren't out to carry the banner for all midmajors, however.

"I don't know if it's selfish or not, but we want to do it for ourselves," forward Matt Howard said.

"We don't look at it as doing it for everyone else or feeling like we need to disable some theory. It's about this team and believing that we can accomplish the next task at hand."

All hail the underdogs

Butler and Connecticut are the last teams standing—and Whizzer couldn't be happier

By Whizzer FOR REDEYE

Monday's NCAA title game doesn't get any better than this. For me, at least. Huskies vs. Bulldogs. The top dogs vs. the underdogs.

It's a good day for canine nation—finally.

You might remember a few weeks ago I made my NCAA tourney predictions right here in these very pages. Well, not these exact pages, but on pages 12 and 13 of RedEye's March 14 issue.

In case you forgot, which I'm sure you didn't, considering how loyal of a Whizzer reader you are, here are some of my calls.

- » I had No. 2 seed Notre Dame bowing out early "in the tradition of the football team."
- » In the "12 over 5" category, I had Memphis beating Arizona, but it was No. 12 Richmond that pulled off the upset that happens almost every year.
- » I correctly picked No. 11 seed Marquette to make the Sweet 16.
- » I had Connecticut in the Final Four, beating many people's Final Four pick, North Carolina.

And that was about as good as it gets. I had just three Elite Eight teams correct and one Final Four team.

But that's not really my fault. This tournament was beyond the best of anybody's prognosticating abilities, including mine. Which leads us to Butler vs. Connecticut.

No one thought the Bulldogs could return to the title game after losing Gordon Hayward to the NBA. Not even me. And not many had Connecticut playing for a championship. Not even me. Yes, I did not have faith in my brethren. But here they are.

I would like to kiss and make up with both, but that would make for an ugly scene here. Instead, I can only satisfy one underdog as I make a revised title-game prediction.

Here now, my pick: Butler 70, Connecticut 66.

1 What's your prediction for the Butler-Connecticut championship game?

Butler will again realize that these days you have to pay market value wages to win an NCAA title.

Butler gets it done, and Brad Stevens is rumored for every coaching job short of high school cross country.

For the Huskies-Bulldogs contest? I predict that Michael Vick will have a courtside seat.

Like at the end of most mysteries, the Butler will do it.

A weather girl, entertainment reporter and hockey player had better brackets than me, and you want my prediction?

2 What does Butler's two consecutive trips to the title game tell you?

That they play hard, that Shelvin Mack has a pro future and clearly that there's something in Indiana's water.

No one knows anything about picking in March Madness, and you're a damn liar if you say otherwise.

That one-and-dones have taken the power away from the traditional powerhouses.

Indiana didn't need Bob Knight to become the center of the college basketball universe again.

If they can do it, anyone can. Anyone except DePaul.

3 How will you celebrate if the Bulls win 60 games this season?

Keep your eyes on the prize, people. The season is not a success until LeBron is crying on camera.

Same way I celebrate birthdays and "Bethenny Getting Married" marathons: hand grenades and a pedicure.

A neck tattoo of a rose to go with my Jumpman tat, obviously.

Same way I did when the Cubs won 97 in 2008: with skeptical optimism.

With hot sauce all over my Big Sexy.

4 After a weekend of action, what's your knee-jerk opinion of the Cubs or Sox?

I feel like both can contend, the AL and NL Central being about as stable as a Bravo casting call.

The Sox are playing like they did in "Major League II." Speaking of, are we over Charlie Sheen yet?

Starlin Castro is good at baseball. I'll wait to weigh in on everything else.

I seriously wanna kick some Sox fans. What? My knee was jerking!

Careful with the knee-jerk—isn't that the reason Carlos Zambrano's hand cramped up?

5 It's do or die for the Blackhawks this week. How you feeling?

Too soon to turn our backs on a Cup-winning team, but if they don't win that Lady Byng trophy ...

In times like this, I ask: "What would The Rock do?" I suggest Kaner put someone through a table.

Like Dave Bolland, I'm listed as day-to-day.

Thanks to Captain Morgan, comfortably numb.

They'll have better results than Charlie Sheen's stage tour. #RealWinning

Struck down

Blackhawks' playoff hopes take a hit with loss to Lightning

Playoff hopes have come down to the last week of the regular season for the Blackhawks, who sincerely wished playoff hopes did not come down to the last week of the regular season.

The Lightning visited Sunday in what was just another biggest-game-of-the-year for the defending Stanley Cup champions. For the second game in their past three, though, the Blackhawks were shut out. This time 2-0.

"We're trying," Hawks captain Jonathan Toews said. "Everyone wants to score goals. It's the most fun part of the game. It's frustrating when you can't do that as often as you want.

"It's not just one or two guys that have to score the goals in here—it's everyone that can find a way to step up and take advantage of their opportunities. So if guys in here are thinking that's not their role, they're mistaken. Everyone can chip in."

Mike Smith stopped all 31 shots he saw for his first shutout since March 2010. He entered with a ho-hum .888 save percentage in 20 games this season.

"We've got four games left, we're looking for more offense, looking for more strength in the puck area, and that'll turn into something positive," coach Joel Quenneville said.

Quenneville said injured forward Patrick Sharp would meet with doctors following Sunday's game to reassess his left knee injury. Quenneville said there was "no news" on an update regarding the condition of center Dave Bolland, who has been sidelined since March 9 with a concussion.

SPORTS BRIEFS

Pittsburgh 5, Cubs 4

Matt Garza pitched well in his Cubs debut, striking out 12 and allowing 12 hits in seven innings, but not well enough to win. His 4-3 lead turned into a 5-4 Cubs loss after Carlos Marmol gave up two runs in the ninth on an infield single.

Cleveland 7, White Sox 1

The White Sox were collectively baffled by a failed bunt attempt that resulted in a Cleveland turning a triple play and transformed a promising rally into a 7-1 loss.

Growing up and out

Snagging a seat at popular spots is about to get easier

By Erin Sarris

There's no better time for a spruce-up than springtime, and a few bars and restaurants around town are doing just that. Whether face-lifts were needed because of pint-size kitchens, limited seating or just to shake things up, here's a look at what changes to expect at five local spots.

BARRY BRECHSEIN FOR METROMIX

DAN PETERSON FOR METROMIX

High Dive

1938 W. Chicago Ave. 773-235-3483

This Ukrainian Village bar has bigger aspirations for its 45-seat space and cozy kitchen. "The waits were so long, we couldn't capitalize on the nights we were doing well," co-owner Georg Simos said.

What to expect: High Dive is expanding eastward into the building next door, tripling its space to house about 25 more tables, a pool table and possibly shuffleboard. The kitchen will add weekend brunch and a handful of new dinner items, some borrowed from its Logan Square sister restaurant, The Rocking Horse.

ETA: In early May, just in time for its fifth anniversary

FYI: High Dive is still open in its current space. It will close for a day or two before re-opening.

Hopleaf

5148 N. Clark St.
773-334-9851

Of all the places eyeing an expansion, this Uptown beer bar perhaps has waited the longest. Owner Michael Roper snagged the adjoining space in June 2009 but was caught up in the lending freeze before he could break ground. Now, after a few years of solid growth, Hopleaf is ready to branch out. "Every night we get through a busy night is a miracle," Roper said.

What to expect: The undersized kitchen is getting a serious upgrade, meaning the restaurant will be able to serve lunch, bake bread in-house, and add oysters and other prep-intensive meals to the menu. Hopleaf will net about 100 seats on two floors, add another bar with new beer draft lines and draft wine by the glass, and an upgraded list of reserve wine bottles.

ETA: Late summer

FYI: There'll be a couple of dusty days, but no closings or limited service.

Lula Cafe

2537 N. Kedzie Blvd. 773-489-9554

The crowds are more than willing to wait around for seasonally driven dishes at this ever-popular Logan Square spot, which currently has a no-reservations policy. But co-owner Jason Hammel knew handling the rushes would continue to be a challenge without an expansion. "People all seem to want to eat at the same time," he joked.

What to expect: The cafe will expand next door, netting about 30 more seats and adding a bigger bar to serve an amped-up coffee selection, a few new wines and, for the first time, beer on tap. Lula also will expand seating on the outdoor patio and begin taking a limited number of reservations.

ETA: June at the latest

FYI: No closures are expected, but diners may be asked to pardon the dust for a couple of days right before opening.

Del Seoul

2568 N. Clark St. 773-248-4227

This Lincoln Park Mexican-Korean fusion spot is a neighborhood favorite, but the hungry late-night crowds stretch the space to the max. "We don't want people to rush out because there's a line," co-owner Irene Jeon said.

What to expect: Most diners are quickly in and out, but seating is still at a premium on weekends. By expanding into the space next door, seating will almost double and the kitchen will get a much-needed boost in the space department. That means come summertime, there may be one or two additional tacos and small plates joining the menu.

ETA: Early May

FYI: A weeklong closure is expected just before the re-opening.

Revolution Brewing

2323 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-227-2739

More than a year after its opening, this Logan Square brewpub still tallies waits up to two hours on weekend nights. Because of limited space, staff isn't able to seat large groups together or book private parties.

What to expect: Upstairs will add about 100 seats to the brewpub's capacity and give staff the ability to book private parties. "Downstairs we're really focused on dining, [so] there's not a lot of room to just drink beers or watch a game," general manager Michelle Foik said. In addition to a second bar, with 16 beer taps, the extra space also will feature more TVs and a second fireplace surrounded with couch seating.

ETA: Early June

FYI: Revolution recently signed a lease on a production facility that will bottle and can its brews for retail sales as early as the end of the year.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Aries

March 21-April 19

You're going to give your lover an ultimatum. No longer will you let your honey dress up in your underwear. You want to be allowed to wear his underwear, too. It's only fair. A righteous full moon is riling you up.

Taurus April 20-May 20

A group situation could get weird as Pluto stirs up the kink. You'll find yourself at a casual party that turns into an orgy. Or you'll be hanging out with friends, sharing a pizza, when everybody strips down to their underwear.

Gemini May 21-June 21

You know that he's bad for you. So don't say "yes" when he asks you to marry him after too many martinis. You know all of her games. So don't trust her when she says, "I'm dating you exclusively." Neptune is telling you to wise up and be smart.

Cancer June 22-July 22

Business and money matters are driving you bonkers. All you want to do is escape into a world of sex. You'll hook up with anything that moves. You're in a "sleep with me now and don't ask any questions" mood, thanks to Jupiter.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

A relationship that was just so-so suddenly could be wow-wow. Mercury is increasing your compatibility with that interesting person who recently entered your life. You'll be surprised at the hot chemistry.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Mercury is making everything 10 times harder than it has to be. Your sex life is not satisfying; work is bumming you out. And your family and friends have all suddenly gone insane. Everything will get better in a few weeks. Hang in there.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You're under a lot of pressure right now. Something has got to give. The sun says create room in your schedule so you can breathe.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

Be careful what you wish for, because it easily could come true. Neptune is creating some magic moments. Use your newfound superpowers for good.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

A moon opposition has you wondering if romance is even worth it. Revitalize those flagging spirits by hanging out with friends who make you feel good.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

A powerful someone has his or her eye on you. Venus is stirring up complications with a boss, connected colleague or other authority figure. You'll have to decide whether you want to venture into those dangerous yet seductive waters.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Don't let other people push your buttons. The sun is creating melodrama and angst, but you don't have to participate in it. Let your roommate have her little hissy fit or stand calm and cool as your boyfriend vents about a minor annoyance.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

With Neptune entering your sign, your psychic skills are getting stronger. You'll be able to sense your partner's every sexual wish before he or she even expresses it.

Lower Back Pain?

Are You or Someone You Know Suffering From Lower Back Pain?

Northwestern University is seeking volunteers who have lower back pain in order to determine where the pain is recognized in the brain. Participants will also be evaluated to determine why pain goes away for some people while it remains for others. This is a 12 month study consisting of 1 visit at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago and 5 MRI scans at Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Olson Pavilion. All visits will take place in downtown Chicago.

Eligible participants must:

- Be 18 years or older
- Have a history of lower back pain which began 4-16 weeks ago with pain radiating into the buttocks or legs
- Be able to undergo a MRI (no pacemakers, metallic implants, or spinal implants)

Please call 312-503-3181 for more information on how you can take part in this research study.

SONG

'Secret Love'

Stevie Nicks

Stevie Nicks' new single "Secret Love" makes it sound like the Gold Dust Woman has never been away. There's a "Landslide" feel to the harmonies, but the rest of the spare accompaniment sounds as current as anything else on rock radio. Nicks' upcoming "In Your Dreams" album is her first studio effort in 10 years, but "Secret Love" shows that her regular touring and high-profile duets with Sheryl Crow, Taylor Swift and now Rod Stewart have kept her as sharp as ever.

GOT A TIP?

Do you have a hot tip on a celebrity sighting in Chicago? E-mail Luis or tweet him @luisarroyave.

Which spot had Dennis Rodman on the menu?

If two basketball stars visit your restaurant and the more normal of the pair is Joakim Noah, you're probably in for an interesting night. That's exactly what the staff at Japonais got when the ponytailed Bulls center visited the River North restaurant in mid-March with Dennis Rodman.

Rodman danced at his table like nobody was watching (even though all eyes were on the 6-foot-7 future Hall of Famer) and kept dancing while making his way to and from the bar. According to Japonais staff, Rodman embraced his self-appointed waiter role.

"He put the drinks he ordered at the bar on a server's tray and took them back to his table and served them to his guests," said Sandy Park, Japonais executive director of operations.

Where did Japonais finish among Chicago's top celeb hangouts last month? Here's the March edition of the About Last Night rankings, plus some details for each spot:

2 HUB 51

Bears' Brian Urlacher, Julius Peppers and Israel Idonije, Super Bowl XX MVP Richard Dent, Blackhawks' Patrick Kane and Jonathan Toews, Bethenny Frankel, Jenna Dewan and Naturi Naughton
» You might have a better chance of spotting the Bears here than on the field this year with an NFL lockout lingering.

3 JAPONAIS

Nicole Richie, Joel Madden, Dennis Rodman, Bulls' Joakim Noah and Taj Gibson, Guy Fieri, Blackhawks' Michael Frolik
» Like him or not, Fieri is one of Food Network's biggest stars. The fact that he chose to eat here has to count for something, right?

Van Winkle

Samberg, who's 32, will play 44-year-old Sandler's son? You be the judge.

Ice, Ice buddy

"Stop. Collaborate and listen." Adam Sandler was paying attention, apparently. According to Variety, erstwhile rapper Vanilla Ice (real name: Robert Van Winkle) will star as Sandler's buddy in the movie "I Hate You, Dad." Which is stranger—Ice or that Andy

Two be continued?

One sports crazy-colored hair, the other was most infamous when she had no hair at all, but Nicki Minaj and Britney Spears eventually may have more in common than odd fashion choices. According to The Hollywood Reporter, Minaj is in talks—but hasn't finalized anything—to tour this summer with Spears. Duhamel, 38, rocked black jeans, a purple bowtie and a 'do that was totally The Bieb pre-haircut. Duhamel also took home an award for best arm-farting. Um, congratulations?

Kiddin' around

"There's a whole bunch of people [among the 'Grey's' crew] who are into comics and Marvel, too, on the set and they're like, 'Doctor Strange, that's the one you should do.' It would be fantastic."
